This research is the culmination of a part-time EdD programme and I would like to thank all tutors, speakers and fellow students who helped make this journey a challenge, thought-provoking, informative and enjoyable experience. I would particularly like to thank all of the trainee teachers, teacher educators, MTL Manager, SPTs and head teachers who gave their time in contributing to this study.

I am indebted to my supervisory team; Professor Ann-Marie Bathmaker who started me on this pathway and gave me confidence that I could achieve, Doctor Jane Andrews for her encouragement and support throughout, Doctor Dean Smart for making me think outside the box and Professor Gaynor Attwood for her guidance and feedback. Without their time, advice and help, I would not have been able to have completed this thesis.

Thank you to my family and friends who have continued to believe in me. Thanks also to Hillary for carefully proof reading and commenting.

Finally, I would like to thank my partner who has been my rock. Their patience, encouragement, understanding and unconditional support, especially through the difficult times, has been invaluable. I could not have completed this without them.
